

Nexora Corporate Knowledge Base: Communication Guidelines

Target Role: ALL | Version: Official | Published: 2026-09-25

1. Channel Standards

- Slack: Primary platform for internal real-time and asynchronous messaging. Use public channels by default; reserve DMs for 1-on-1s and private feedback.
- Email: Reserved for external vendors, formal HR announcements, and legal communication.
- Zoom / Google Meet: Used for synchronous meetings with video-on preference during standups.
- Notion / Confluence: Single source of truth for documentation, RFCs, and engineering specifications.

2. Slack Etiquette

Always use message threads to keep channels readable. Use status indicators (e.g. ■ Vacation, ■ Deep Work, ■ Lunch) to manage availability expectations.

6. Meeting Hygiene

Every synchronous meeting needs an agenda, a Notion notes page, and a written decision log. Recurring meetings without an agenda for two consecutive cycles are cancelled by default.

7. Escalation Paths

Production issues escalate to the #incidents war room, security anomalies to #security-alerts, and deployment exceptions to #hotfix-approvals. Routine discussion stays in topical public channels.

8. External Communication

Only designated spokespeople communicate with customers, press, or vendors on Nexora's behalf. Employees never disclose unreleased plans, customer data, or security posture outside approved channels.
